Lab dumps small doses of harmful solvent

LIVERMORE — A top Lawrence Livermore Laboratory official revealed yesterday that the potentially harmful solvent benzene may have been discarded into the city's sewage system.

Dr. Frederick Hatch, section leader at LLL's biomedical department told The Times he doesn't have "the foggiest notion" how much benzene could be downstream but that it is not a harmful amount.

Dr. Jim Johnson, an industrial hygienist at the lab said that LLL has cracked down on the use of benzene the past month since it was believed to be the source of leukemia contracted by workers in an Ohio industry.

Hatch said that levels of exposure in the Ohio incident were far greater than could be expected from small laboratory discards.

A former LLL employee who has worked with the organic solvent in the lab's biomedical department said that he has seen it discarded down the drain connected to Livermore's sewage system on more than one occasion two months ago.

He estimated that as much as 100 milliliters (less than one cup) — of the substance per week was put into the system.

Hatch, however, estimated that only 10 milliliters per week of benzene could have gone into the lab's 400,000 gallons of sewage allotment.

LLL's Johnson said that there are between 30 and 40 organic chemicals that they are controlling.

"Since benzene was recognized as a potential hazard, Johnson said, "it has been included in the controlled list."

Dr. Mortimer Mendelsohn, Associate Director of biomedical and environmental research at the lab said that it takes about $200,000 to test a compound for cancer causing effects in mammals, and years to analyze the results.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) oversees discard of hazardous wastes at LLL and sets standards for disposal of all carcinogenic substances.

Johnson said that LLL follows standards set by Occupational Safety and Health Administration "only through administrative agreement with ERDA." "Although we meet the intent of state requirements, ERDA has responsibility to dispose of carcinogens," Johnson said.

Both the State Health Department and ERDA are developing an incinerator for toxin disposal which is expected to be operating in a couple months.

Lightning starts 3 blazes

Lightning-caused fires were raging out of control on the Alamo-Danville Ridge and Mt. Diablo last night.

Dublin also had a grass fire, quickly extinguished at 4:30 p.m. by Valley Community Services District firefighters, that was caused by lightning yesterday. No rain accompanied the lightning and thunder.

The ridge fire was visible to many inhabitants of the Danville and Alamo area. Reports phoned to The Times last night indicated one or more families evacuated ranch houses in the hills west of Danville to escape the flames. No reports of possible damages were available.

A bigger fire, covering more than 90 acres at last report, was roaring on the northeast face of Mt. Diablo last night as mutual aid fire companies from most of central Contra Costa County responded. Horses were evacuated from nearby ranches as flames leapt down toward Mitchell Canyon Road.

Designated swimming areas, like this jammed one at Del Valle Reservoir, will be open today

Another scorcher but it'll cool off today

The heat wave that has seared Valley residents and their fellow swelterers throughout Northern California has allegedly been beaten back.

The thermometer dipped to an official 103-degrees in Livermore yesterday afternoon, down just a tad from the 106-degree high reported in the Valley over the weekend.

The outlook is for somewhat cooler temperatures as pillows of fog are sucked from the Pacific by high inland temperatures, and rip their way through the Golden Gate to cool the Bay Area.

In fact, scattered thunder showers heralded a cooling trend yesterday afternoon.

East Bay Regional Parks are still operating under a "red alert" that bans or limits activities, but that, too, may be lifted today.

Livermore	103
Pleasanton.....	101
Dublin.....	100

Sunol Regional Park is closed to all use. The Del Valle Park is partially open, with hiking trails and remote areas closed. Swimming and camping in authorized areas are permitted.

The bans could be lifted today after park officials take readings of both the temperature and the humidity to determine the "wet factor" of the tinder dry grasslands.

According to a U.S. National Weather Bureau spokesman, things are "gradually getting better. It will probably run five to 10 degrees cooler in most places."

Unfortunately, the skies were not limited to Cirrus and Cumulus clouds yesterday.

A sheen of whiskey colored smog drifted through the Dublin Canyon from the urban bay basin.

The Bay Area Air Pollution Control District reported "light" smog in the Valley, peninsula, Napa and Vallejo, and "significant" smog readings in San Jose, San Francisco, Oakland, and the north bay counties were given "clean" bills of health.

The State Division of Forestry at Sunol reported a noon reading of 90-degrees yesterday.

Fire fighters at Valley Community Services District in Dublin read an unofficial 100-degrees in mid-afternoon.

Livermore topped the scale with 103-degrees, closely followed by Pleasanton at an unofficial 101.

It was an unofficial "97 in the shade" in San Ramon, according to a fireman, "and there ain't no shade."

San Francisco sweltered in the mid-70s before the fog began its roll across the hills to the bay.

Oakland International Airport reported a high of 76-degrees and 10 miles visibility. It was 84-degrees at the tower on Sunday.

Hint of a firefighter slowdown

PLEASANTON — Fire fighters are poised to sue the city over so-called "unproductive" labor negotiations in their ongoing argument over alleged disparity in past pay hikes.

And there is added, quiet talk of a "work slow down" if the situation deteriorates.

The Fire Fighters Union local 1974 of the AFL-CIO, unanimously voted to authorize San Francisco attorney Alan Davis to proceed with a suit.

Lt. Dennis Laurence, president of the local, said the suit will ask for "roughly $90,000 compensation," and "probably $100,000 in punitive damages."

The issue apparently is not wage demands, but benefits and past alleged disparity in pay boosts and benefits among different ranks of the department.

Attorney Davis could not be reached for comment, but the suit reportedly has not yet been filed.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig would not comment on it until "until I see a copy of the suit," he said. He "doubts" there will be a work slowdown, but admits "that's just a guess on my part."

"We can get strike sanction," Lt. Laurence said, "but we don't want to. It's not like private industry. When you go on strike against the city council, it's the people who get hurt."

But there is, he added, the "possibility" of a work slowdown.

The department's two dozen union members are the only labor group not to sign a new pact. Police, represented by Operating Engineers' Local 3, and the City Employees' Association inked contracts last week.

The city has reportedly offered a formal 5 per cent pay boost, and an informal offer of 7 per cent plus an additional 1 per cent to cover any earlier losses that went to captains.

The union wants 9 per cent for fire fighters and lieutenants and 7 per cent for captains.

Man killed in fall from truck

LIVERMORE — A Chatsworth man, reportedly suffering from a cold and wanting fresh air, opened a door while riding in a pick-up truck on Interstate 580 Saturday morning and fell to his death.

Highway patrol officials said Marvin Teitelbaum, 29, was pronounced dead at Valley Memorial Hospital shortly after the 3:30 a.m. accident.

Isaac Eugene Walker, 26, of Sepulveda, driver of Teitelbaum's 1955 Chevrolet pick-up, said the passenger had complained of a cold and the lack of fresh air while riding near Greenville Road. "I heard a thump and he was gone," a highway patrol spokesman quoted Walker as saying.

Walker stopped the truck, picked Teitelbaum up from the road surface and rushed to Valley Memorial. Teitelbaum died of head wounds a short time later.

Mohamad's aircraft was banking gently to the right and Roberts' was flying level when the collision occurred, Lawson said.

During his investigation, Lawson examined and discarded the possibilities that ad weather conditions, health problems or intoxication may have played a part in the crash.

"Investigators like to arrive at conclusions with a little more substance to them than this one, but there is just no other explanation. The two pilots just did not see each other," Lawson concluded.

The two planes collided over the Sunrise subdivision in San Ramon.

Commute patterns

Where we go to work

A Newark-based group trying to get a protest going locally against the higher Bay Bridge tolls probably won't get much numerical support here.

The Valley has a reputation as commuterland and that's why the Committee Against a Toll Tax called a meeting in Pleasanton a week ago. But turnout was very low and a look at the statistics for local commuter destinations gives the apparent reason — most commuters stay on the eastern side of the bridges.

It is not easy to get specific figures for people commuting to San Francisco. The only exact data about San Francisco as a commuter destination was a survey done by telephone in 1973 by Pleasanton's general plan consultants. It showed that 5.5 per cent of the household wage earners in that city were working in The City.

Alameda County Planning Department, which has data from a survey in Dublin taken last year, lumps San Francisco in with others "outside the county." That category has 26 per cent of the principal wage earners in Dublin households who are working. But many of the residents probably head for nearby Contra Costa County and Santa Clara County.

Livermore includes San Francisco the "north bay" area with a 7 per cent figure. That's for the households' "principal wage earners." Among "secondary wage earners," only 1 per cent heads for the Northbay.

The data also shows that Livermore is the stay-at-home community with 40 per cent of the principal wage earners working in their hometowns. 13 per cent are retired or unemployed, 10 per cent work in the Eastbay via Interstate 580, 7 per cent in the North Bay via 580 or 680, 5 per cent in Pleasanton, 4 per cent in Dublin, 4 per cent in Southbay, 5 per cent in Fremont, Hayward and the Peninsula via Niles Canyon, 3 per cent Central Valley and 2 per cent Contra Costa County.

Pleasanton's figures in a 1975 special census, (which brackets San Francisco with Oakland and other cities), shows 33.83 per cent for the East Bay and the City, 12 per cent in Pleasanton, 5.7 per cent in Livermore, 4.9 per cent in Dublin, 7.2 per cent Southbay, 2.7 per cent in Contra Costa County, and 10.8 per cent in more than one area. There were 1.69 per cent "unemployed but seeking employment."

Pilots didn't see each other

OAKLAND — The pilots of two light planes which collided over San Ramon June 2 simply did not see each other.

That is the conclusion of Noel Lawson, an investigator for the National Transportation and Safety Board.

"I've been looking into the matter since the day it happened," Lawson said. "I tracked down numerous leads but none of them led anywhere. It appears to be a case of them simply not seeing each other."

Three persons died when the two Cessna 150's, owned by Sierra Academy of Aeronautics in Oakland collided at about 3 p.m. while on separate training flights.

According to Lawson, the plane of student pilot Alan Kenneth Roberts, 36, of Fremont, collided with the right front area of the craft flown by student Mohammad Salman Mohamad, 22, of Baghdad, Iraq. Also in the second plane was instructor Robert E. Merrick, 27, of 1115 Camino Vallecito, Lafayette.

Flasher reappears in downtown area

LIVERMORE — A large man driving a dirty yellow station wagon exposed himself to three young girls at the intersection of Seventh and South I streets early Thursday, police reported.

Two 12-year-old girls and an 11-year-old companion were walking northbound on South I about 9:30 a.m. when the suspect vehicle slowly passed. The driver lifted himself from his seat and exposed himself, police said, then drove around the block and repeated it.

The suspect is described as a white man, extremely fat, with shoulder-length brown curly hair. He is said to be driving an older model Chevrolet station wagon.

Police said there was a similar incident in the same area recently.

Girls phone in phony drowning

LIVERMORE — Two 9-year-old girls who admitted phoning in false reports of a boy drowning were given severe reprimands by authorities, police reported.

The report stated that a young boy had caught his foot while swimming and was drowning in a Rincon Avenue pool. The report was discovered to be unfounded.

The mother of one suspect found out about the call and phoned police. Neither suspect was arrested.

Man's truck, wallet stolen while he's in shower

LIVERMORE — Manuel Meza was taking a shower in his Coronado Avenue home Thursday when thieves stole his truck containing his wallet, some papers and a small amount of cash, police reported.

Authorities are attempting to locate Meza's 1973 Ford. A suspect is being sought in connection with the theft.

Weapon, grass found in car

PLEASANTON — A San Ramon man stopped for erratic driving was found to allegedly conceal brass knuckles and a baggie of suspected marijuana, police reported.

Officers stopped the car at Pleasanton and Angela streets Thursday night. After failing a field sobriety test, Gerald Lamar Wofford, 41, of 7479 Blue Fox Way in San Ramon was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving, police said.

While searching the suspect's car, officers found a baggie of suspected marijuana in the car's arm rest console. The metal knuckles were located under the driver's seat, police said.

Wofford was booked on suspicion of drunk driving and possessing a weapon.

Bloody burglar strikes out at school

LIVERMORE — Someone broke a window at Henry School on Alameda Drive Thursday in an apparent burglary attempt, but instead severely cut his hand, police reported.

Officers found a window broken near the school's west door. A trail of blood led away from the scene for a short distance, then stopped.

There were no reports of a badly cut person receiving treatment at Valley Memorial Hospital during that period, police said.

Nothing appeared missing from inside the school. An investigation is continuing.

Motorcycle taken from unlocked garage

PLEASANTON — Burglars took a motorcycle from an unlocked Laura Lane garage over the weekend, police reported.

Carl Preston Scott said his 1976 Kawasaki 900 was missing from the garage on Sunday. There are no suspects.

Last hearings for 2 school budgets

The Amador Valley Joint High School District's $10.3 million budget for 1977-78 will be up for questioning by the public and then adoption tonight.

Trustees of the Amador district will take a final pre-adoption look starting at 8 p.m. Board members meet at the District Education Center, 123 Main St., Pleasanton.

After the annual public hearing on the budget, the board is slated to assign new state funds to the reserve portion of the budget for contingencies.

A second public hearing will include the board's response to the classified employees' salary and benefits reopener proposal. The hearing will be followed by adoption of a board response to the proposal.

The question of whether a designated smoking area at Foothill High School will be permitted again this fall also is due for discussion.

Foothill students had use of such an area on a trial basis during the latter half of the 1976-77 school year.

Trustees are also scheduled to hear a building report, hear second reading of policy on emergency services, authorize advertising for bids on paving additions of the student parking lot at Dublin, consider policies on leaving school grounds, and solicitations, approve a list of textbooks, and advertise for bids to renovate the boys' locker room floor at Amador Valley High School.

On Wednesday, the Pleasanton Joint School District trustees will hold their budget hearing and then act to adopt a $7.9 million budget for 1977-78.

They are also scheduled to assign new state funds to the reserve for contingencies and hold a public hearing on the classified employees' reopener proposal on salary and benefits.

Pleasanton board members must also act on policy about leaving school grounds.

Other agenda items concern a supplemental agreement on leasing of facilities at Camp Parks, school lunch prices for 1977-78, and acting on the resignation of Tony Huff as principal of Walnut Grove School.

May be loot from four thefts

DUBLIN — A 42-year-old Dublin man was arrested Sunday after officers searched his Hillrose Drive home and recovered items suspected of having been stolen during four separate burglaries in Livermore.

Lloyd Hack of 7599 Hillrose Drive was booked at Santa Rita Jail on suspicion of possessing stolen property.

Livermore Municipal Court Judge John Lewis issued a search warrant for Hack's home and vehicles July 29.

Shortly after noon Saturday, officers from the Alameda County Sheriff's Department and the Livermore Police Department converged on the house. Investigators seized a number of goods, which were held pending the investigation.

Police said four items had been tentatively identified as having allegedly been stolen in four recent burglaries in Livermore. The investigation is continuing.

Safeway's strike situation

"Scattered" supply problems is the word at Safeway Stores, where a strike by Teamsters Local 302 has emptied some shelves, a management spokesman said yesterday.

Strikers hit the Oakland ice cream plant and San Leandro's milk outlet, halting some deliveries to stores.

William Gross, urban and public affairs administrator for Safeway, said the chain had virtually altered its distribution system overnight to continue supplying goods to customers.

The strike, which began July 19, is over the disputed terms of a new contract. The union seeks more pay and more benefits.

No new negotiations will be held until un-announced strikers are removed from outlying points.

Two bread truck drivers Saturday told Livermore police that their tires had been slashed near the times they had made deliveries to Safeway's First Street store.

Both drivers said their tires had been punctured. Police had no evidence to link the attacks to strikers.

Union members had defeated Safeway's contract offer in mid-July by a vote of 86-5. One union spokesman said the strike would spread to other stores in the Valley.

Helping pets survive heat

If you think you've got problems in this heat, consider your hamster or dog.

Temperatures over 100 are really hard on them and owners may have to take a few precautions to make sure they don't suffer too much or even die in the heat, a couple of pet store owners told The Times yesterday.

Rodents like hamsters are especially sensitive to the heat and leaving them out in the sun much more than an hour would result in their death, said Bill Wood of the Granada Pet Center in Livermore. So be sure the animals have shade — all animals should have that in hot weather, said Wood. And see that they get plenty of fresh water.

If possible, bring the pets into the house if it's cooler in there, said Wood. If it isn't possible, for example, if you have a rabbit hutch in the back yard, then take cold, wet towels and put them over the mesh of the cage, covering no more than three-quarters of it so that air still circulates well.

Birds can have problems with the heat, too, especially if they grew up in a pet store where the climate is controlled.

Mike at Piper's Pets ("Everybody just knows me as Mike") said that shade and proper ventilation ought to be checked for certain. Glass or plastic cages and should be ventilated properly. If you are going away, make sure the afternoon sun won't be hitting a cage. The glass intensifies the heat.

Land of the giant vegetables

They're growing 'em big — the natural way

Pleasanton school teachers Myrtle and Hurschell Culley tend a garden in Healdsburg where Jack's beanstock seeds might well have sprouted.

Their cabbage grows so fast you can hear it squeaking, purple beans turn bright green when cooked, two pound turnips flourish, and descendants of beans found in King Tut's tomb grow next to two-foot-long zucchini.

What sort of sorcery do the Culleys use to produce such marvels? "Chicken manure," quips Mrs. Culley, adding that steer manure smells quite aromatic in comparison.

There are other reasons for the bountiful crop, not the least of which is a so far unlimited supply of water from their 350-foot well. The Culleys also make a determined effort to avoid using pesticides. "You may find a worm or a bug, but you can pick it out. The pesticides you can't ever get out," explains Mrs. Culley.

In addition to all their water and know-how, Mrs. Culley used to teach botany and science at Pleasanton Elementary School, and both the Culleys were brought up on farms in Idaho. Mrs. Culley says, "The big thing is caring. I love to get up in the morning when the sun comes up and every hour hear the bird calls change."

And, does she talk to her plants? "Oh yes, and I swear at the weeds."

The Culleys grow over 25 varieties of fruits and vegetables. Everything from onions to kohlrabi, beets to pumpkins and strawberries to Jerusalem artichokes can be found on their four-acre plot.

Harvesting the crops is no small chore. Two-pound turnips, six inch peppers, one pound beets and cabbage weighing over 12 pounds are not unusual. In fact, Mr. Culley recently planted strawberries that grow should-high wires because he got tired of bending over to pick the berries, which last year yielded four flats a week from May to September.

The Culleys figure they spend $40 a year on manure, $30 for seeds and $10 a month for electricity to run the well pump. They also figure they pull in over $700 a year in fruits and vegetables.

A problem arises with what to do with all the food. Last year, Mrs. Culley estimates, they canned 450 quarts and kept the families of their four children well stocked with fresh vegetables almost year-round.

Still, Mrs. Culley admits that one of their biggest problems is dealing with the surplus. Each year she Pleasanton school teachers Hurschell and Myrtle Culley have learned their lessons well. Mouth vegetables grow in abundance in their Healdsburg garden. Shown here is just a sampling of their summer harvest — a 12-pound cabbage, two-foot-long zucchini, two-pound turnip and a foot-long cucumber. Fortunately for the Culleys, a 350-foot well on their four acre site is providing them with ample water that around here it just wouldn't be practical to tend such a large garden.

gives away "hundreds and hundreds of pounds." This year she plans to sell some of the excess at 10 cents a pound just to cover the seed costs. Incidentally, Mrs. Culley assures that the flavor isn't lost when the vegetables get so enormous. She says people are used to seeing "little bitty things" in the store. "People are funny. They think as long as there are seeds inside zucchini, they are no good — oh, but they are!" The large ones are especially good for stuffing, she suggests. — by Marie Felde

SURREAL WORLD OF THE VEGETABLE

Outsized vegetables have an appeal for each succeeding generation. They represent more than just a big mess of zucchini. They are abundance in all their colorful glory. They are Eden come home.

We never seem to tire of marvelling at a hundred pound pumpkin and wishing we had grown the critter.

There is a farm near Livermore which grows gigantic pumpkins by a special technique. A hole is bored in the stem, and milk is poured into the hole daily. This nourishes the plant and specifically enlarges the pumpkin concerned. The other pumpkins have been plucked off so that the lucky one gets all the attention. The chosen one flourishes. The others die, never to be a pie.

I was the recipient of just such a pumpkin a couple of years ago. It can be a problem, if you do not wish to ever waste anything.

However, if unable to polish off the whole thing, and finding no more willing recipients for the wondrous food, there is always the compost heap. We used the empty pumpkin shell for a dog house for Wag, our surreal animal who looks like a dog.

There is something fantastic about vegetables and gardens, and the magical quality of growth. Something appears on your plant one day. Each day it gets larger. This is a hair-raising idea which I cannot get used to.

Just when you are hoping your baby eggplant will learn to talk, and be a comfort to you in your old age and you admire it and brag about it, as any doting parent, one day you happen to be in the super market, and you see dozens just like it in the produce section, and have to face the reality that your progeny will not amount to anything more than a vegetable.

Also surreal is the idea of flowers being stationed around vegetables to guard them from insects. But it is true. Marigolds do their best to keep the bugs off the tomatoes and beans by putting off such an unpleasant smell, the insects can't stomach it.

When I was a kid we didn't know about that. One day a cloud of orange and black harlequin beetles settled down on our cabbage patch in such numbers, the cabbages were obscured completely. The whole family picked them off by hand by the thousands, filling up buckets with the crawly little beasts. That, too, was surreal. Buckets full of little clowns looking up at me.

Marigolds grew wild in the Southwestern United States and in Mexico. They grew in the Aztec gardens when Cortez conquered Mexico. Spanish conquistadores took the flower to Spain with them, and devout Catholics placed the golden flower on the altar of the Virgin Mary. The name Mary's Gold eventually became Marigold. Isn't that surreal?

The Burpee Seed Company searched for an odorless Marigold. This was before they realized the value of planting smelly Marigolds among the vegetables. Marigolds are the most popular flower seed sold today, smell and all.

For a long time, plant hybridizers were content to let flowers do their mating in the open fields, under the glorious blue sky. But in the 1940's they started fooling around with Mother nature. They would shock the chromosome structures of flowers with colchicine to make them produce far out sizes and shapes and colors. It may result in off-beat flowers, but I ask you, is it fair?

It is with just such fooling around that they finally developed a seedless watermelon. That's fine, but how do you plant another?

Peridot

Peridot, which is the birthstone for August, has become a very popular stone during the last few years. It is a yellowish-green gem. On a scale of hardness of 1-10, it ranges 6-7, diamonds being 10. Peridots are found around the world from Arizona to Australia. They make beautiful rings, pendants, and other types of jewelry. Peridot is not an expensive gem except in large sized flawless pieces. If you have a birthday in August or just like the stone, come into Glanville's Fine Jewelry and see what we have to offer.

Here's the budget passed in SRV

DANVILLE—The San Ramon Valley Unified School District became the first Valley district to adopt a 1977-78 budget when it acted on a ledger for $25,902,298 last night.

The largest amount, $9.8 million, will go to pay classroom teachers in the rapidly growing K-12 district that includes 20 schools. Estimated assessed valuation for fiscal year '78 shows a significant growth, according to district business manager Orrin Bachelor. The total tax roll, including county and state secured and unsecured, is up $62 million from fiscal year '76.

Bachelor said the increase in assessed valuation will, as it has for the past several years, bring about a decrease in the tax rate. The composite district-wide average tax rate for fiscal year '77 is pegged at $6 per $100 assessed valuation, down 31 cents from last fiscal year. The rate is estimated to drop another 11 cents for fiscal year '78.

According to Bachelor, architect of district budgets, the tax rate decrease will not be comparable to the assessed valuation increase for four reasons:

- A large portion of the assessed valuation growth was due to new homes
- The growth in assessed valuation exceeded the anticipated growth in the number of students. When this occurs, the "wealth per student" increases and the state reduces its share of aid to the district.
- There is an inflation factor added to the revenue limit. For fiscal year '78, the inflation factor is set at $65.07, part of which will come from the state and part from the local property tax.
- The growth in assessed valuation requires that the district make a larger contribution for retirements of state School Building Fund loans. For fiscal year '78 that increase is over $838,000, which increases the tax rate by over 20 cents.

Trustees were told that the district budgeted on a projected average daily attendance (ADA) of 14,351, of which 9,135 are in grades K-8.

With the continuing increases in enrollments, the district has had to budget for additional teachers, classified personnel and administration.

The budget reflects almost 42 additional full-time equivalent teachers for 1977-78, to 582.17. The classified staff is projected to increase by nine to 217.

Bachelor notes, under services and contracts, that the major change is $9,000 for curriculum development.

SR group supports flood plan

DANVILLE—The Valley Action Forum gave the proposed San Ramon Valley flood control project a political boost last week.

The group, composed of representatives from various local organizations and homeowner groups, voted unanimously to support the project.

Before the vote was taken, Milton Kubicek of the county flood control department said, "We would really like to have the support of this group, since it is most representative of the total organizations in the San Ramon area."

The proposed $9.4 million flood plan for Zone 3B of the San Ramon watershed calls for a series of channel improvements and the construction of water detention basins along three major creeks in the valley to prevent flood damage in the event of severe rains.

Although the group lacked a quorum for the second time in a month, VAF president Jack Marzluft nevertheless called for the vote, saying they couldn't keep the matter hanging any longer. He noted that the proposed project was coming up for consideration by the County Planning Commission Aug. 16 and by the Board of Supervisors early in September.

Homestay students

Barbara Heimowitz, far left, Valley coordinator for the Homestay program, and teaching assistant Julie Blow welcome high school and college age Japanese students to Valley at initial session of English language and culture class at Dublin High Monday. Some 30 students and teachers from Japan will spend three weeks in Valley, being hosted by families in Dublin, San Ramon, Pleasanton and Livermore. They'll combine morning classes at Dublin with excursions to such Bay Area points of interest as the Exploratorium and Levis Strauss plant in San Francisco (Wednesday) and an Oakland A's game Thursday. A barbecue and swim is planned for August 9 at the Pleasanton Aquatic Center. (Times photo)

All meetings are open to the public.

A community-wide barbecue will be held in Area A on the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton on the evening of Sept. 24.

Full details of the week-long series of activities will be released at a future date.

Recycling continues in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON—Aluminum recyclers in the Valley are continuing their efforts throughout the summer months at Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation's CanDo center located here, according to company officials.

Recyclers are paid 17-cents per pound for all aluminum beverage cans and cleaned, flattened household foil products.

Pleasanton's CanDo site is located at the company's Center for Technology, 6117 Sunol Blvd., where collections are made through a large mobile van parked there from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. each Thursday.

CanDo has paid groups and individuals nearly $8 million for aluminum returned since the program began in 1970. The project has brought in 60 million pounds of aluminum.

Pleasanton's site is one of some 125 throughout California, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Louisiana, New Jersey and Florida.

Further expansion is planned this year both locally, and on the East Coast and in the Southern States as Kaiser Aluminum continues its efforts to reduce litter, conserve energy, and preserve natural resources through recycling, according to the company.

For further information on CanDo, call 271-3469.

Chiropractic Health Hints

THE FUNCTION OF THE STOMACH IN DIGESTION

One of the body's most important organs is the stomach. Actually this organ is nothing more or less than a dilated portion of the intestinal tract in which food undergoes preliminary changes.

The stomach performs two important functions. First, it breaks up the food by a constant series of contractions which churn and mix the various food elements. This serves to mix the foods with the gastric juices so that the food can be further digested.

These two functions of the stomach are dependent upon a control through the nervous system which is marvelously executed by the intelligence which actuates all living materials. It is responsible for every function in the human body, and by sending out tiny messages through the nerve trunks leading to the stomach it promotes the glandular and muscular activity there. Therefore, no matter how important are the functions of secretion and contraction, they in turn are dependent upon a normal supply of nervous energy.

There are several necessities of life without which the body can live for only a short while. These include oxygen, water and food. Food must be processed by very complicated chemical reactions before it can be of benefit to the body. Much of this processing is done in the stomach. Abnormal action of the stomach results in improperly processed food which then passes on through the intestine as waste material and is never actually absorbed to become a part of the body tissue.

It is quite natural that the victims of stomach trouble should watch their diet carefully. It must be admitted, however, that even with proper food placed in the stomach, little good comes of it without proper nerve supply.

Dieting, therefore, while capable of bringing temporary relief and permitting a more rapid recovery, cannot of itself reach the cause of stomach trouble. It should be used as an aid in supplying the environment in which recovery can take place under chiropractic treatment of the impinged nerves - only in this way can the cause be removed.

For more information on THE FUNCTION OF THE STOMACH call Dr. R.J. Serafin in DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband gets very angry with me because I like to get away from the family to be by myself for a couple of hours each weekend. He always asks a lot of guests to our home every weekend. While I don't mind doing most of the cooking, I find I really need time away. He feels this is rude and antisocial. If I do it his way (he seems tireless) I'm afraid I'll say something I don't mean, because I'm just tired of people. Not tired of individuals — just noise and talk, in general. How I can break my habit? — S.K.

DEAR S. K.: Don't try to. I believe your husband should allow you to be yourself and to take care of your own needs. It sounds to me as if he's an extrovert and you're more of an introvert. There's nothing wrong with this. In fact, introverts are usually attracted to extroverts and marriages between the two work out well as long as each respects the other's needs.

Your husband obviously thrives on people and is much less disturbed by noise while you need much more peace and quiet. I'm sure your guests don't mind if you leave them during certain hours. They may actually welcome it and have similar needs for themselves.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My neighbor criticized me when she saw me hit my 8-year-old son because he'd done something I told him not to do. I don't see anything wrong with this. I was raised with many spankings and it didn't hurt me. In fact, my brothers were kept in line because my parents were very strict. If kids were more disciplined, there wouldn't be so many problems and so much violence. — A.R.

DEAR A.R.: Studies indicate that you're wrong in your theories of how to discipline. I agree that discipline is necessary, in fact, essential. However, corporal punishment isn't justified, isn't necessary, and is always counterproductive because it creates fear and resentment in the child.

A child may obey through fear for a while, but the price for this kind of obedience is high and always damages the emotional relationship between parent and child.

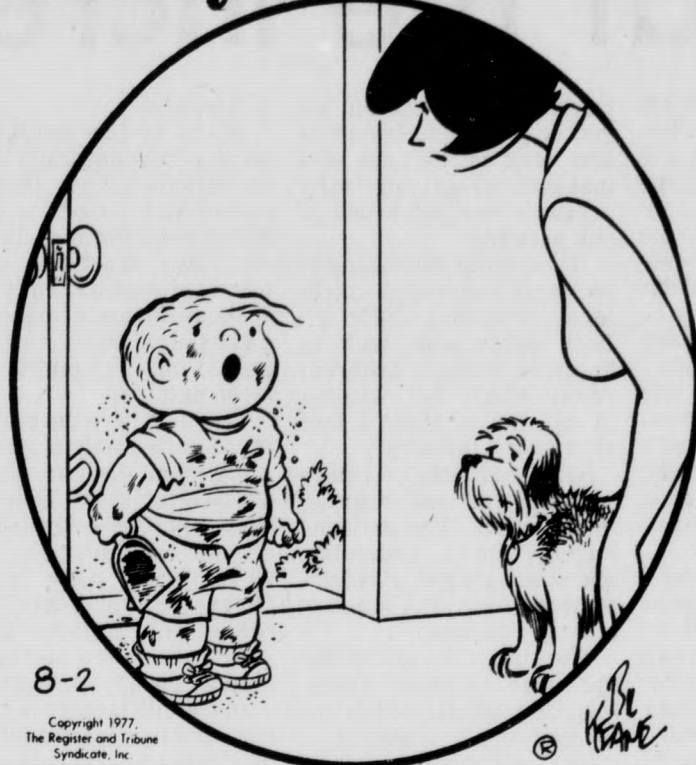

Violence begets violence. Violent individuals are almost always the children of violent parents. There's no doubt that children can, and do, arouse violent feelings, but when parents hurl this violence back at the children they're teaching, by example, that this is the proper way to handle problems. Spankings are mainly an outlet for the feelings of immature parents. It serves the purpose of the parents, not the child.

The most effective discipline is to give a child a choice of actions. When he does something well, he receives praise and reward so that he'll want to repeat that behavior in the future. If a child fully understands why he is to do something and then deliberately goes against his parent's wishes, the parent should first try to find out why, and then, as a punishment, withhold some privilege.

In the long run, parents who use this system will have better, healthier relationships with their children.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"Another bikini went past ... I can tell by your sighing!"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate it if you would send me a write-up on pulse rate. A friend of mine and a relative said their doctor told them they both had a slow pulse rate — 60 beats.

Can anything be done with a slow rate or is nothing really necessary? Are there any symptoms with slow rates?

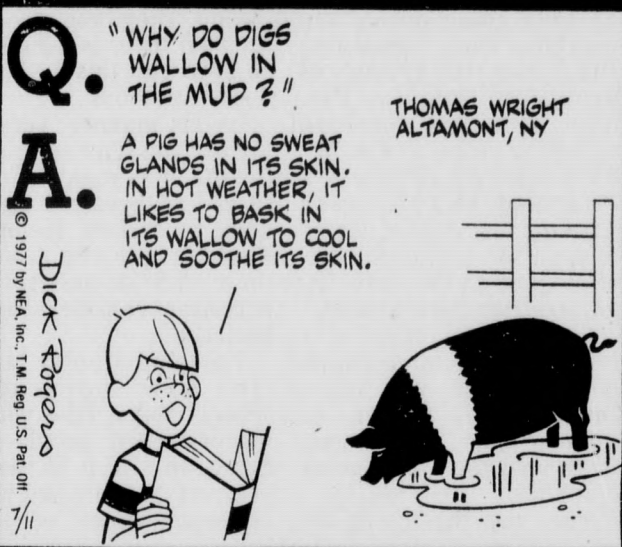

DEAR READER — It depends entirely on what causes it. A slow heart rate is often a sign of a healthy heart. A vigorous well-trained athlete may have a resting heart rate below 40 per minute. In fact most well-conditioned men have rates below 60 beats per minute at rest. Since there are so few individuals who are really in a state of optimal fitness and who do not smoke or drink coffee we have become accustomed to thinking of higher heart rates — which are the norm for our not-so-fit society.

Roger Bannister had a resting heart rate in the 70s when he began training for the four minute mile. When he was properly conditioned and ready to break the world's record his resting heart rate

There you have it, on one hand our healthiest people may have a slow heart rate as a sign of health and at the other extreme it can be a sign of heart disease. A rate of 60 by itself, though, is not likely to be of clinical significance. To give you more information on heart rates I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-8, Your Heart Rate: What It Means. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

was in the 30s. That gave him the reserve he needed to make that enormous physical effort. Some medicines slow heart rates too — as a side effect. And then there are people who have heart block who have very slow heart rates. Those with this medical problem who have rates that fall too low will have inadequate blood flow to the brain. This can lead to mental confusion or loss of consciousness or even convulsions. This can be dangerous. These individuals require a pacemaker to prevent the heart from beating too slowly.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DO PIGS WALLOW IN THE MUD?"

A. A PIG HAS NO SWEAT GLANDS IN ITS SKIN. IN HOT WEATHER, IT LIKES TO BASK IN ITS WALLOW TO COOL AND SOOTHE ITS SKIN.

THOMAS WRIGHT
ALTAMONT, NY

We are all familiar with the old expression "as dirty as a pig."

It is true that pigs like to wallow in the mud, but pigs don't take mud baths simply because they like to be dirty. A pig has no sweat glands in its skin. This means that its body cannot be cooled by perspiration. In hot weather, the pig wallows in the mud only to cool and soothe its skin.

Actually, the pig is not a dirty creature. It will keep itself as clean as most other farm animals if allowed, but many pigs are forced to live in unsanitary conditions.

A pig is not particular about what it eats, and finds nourishment in many kinds of food. In earlier days pigs were fed scraps and leftovers from the kitchen, which created filth and offensive odors in the pig pen.

In modern farming practices, pigs are not fed on garbage, but on carefully balanced diets. They are kept in more sanitary surroundings as well.

Arrangements that you make with others could be fortunate for you this coming year. It's possible you won't fully exploit your position and thus lose what might be a great advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unfortunately, this is one of those days when you take your duties too lightly. Ultimately, this will catch up with you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The "if come" may well be the "never come" for you today. Don't bet on anything unless you have all the facts and the odds are in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not the day to rely on others to cover for you. If it's important, you better be there to make certain it's taken care of.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you'll find it extremely difficult to "less up" to your shortcomings. You're apt to spend more time rationalizing your errors than correcting them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Extravagance and carelessness are your major enemies today. You could go into the hole by overspending or be busted by overlooking details.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a good opener today, but a poor closer. You are reticent to take your rightful share of the proceeds.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) While your intentions are noble today, your follow-through is awful. Don't build someone's hopes up, then carelessly dash them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If a friend is in a jam today, aid him in any way you can, but don't take on his obligations. They may be larger than you think.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You tend to take things for granted today. This could be a big mistake. Something you think is a snap could be a snare.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's great to be optimistic, but it's more important to be realistic today. Don't don the rose-colored glasses.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the worst bids in bridge is what we call the "Ostrich" bid. Traditionally, the ostrich feels that if he sticks his head in the sand no one can see him and nothing bad can happen to him.

North's pass to West's two spades is an example of this type bid at its worst. As he explained after his opponents had chalked up 300 points by setting the five-diamond contract two tricks, he had hoped that by passing he would not encourage East and West to bid game.

That reasoning is fallacious at best. If East and West have a game they are looking at their own cards, know they have it and will bid it.

If East and West don't have enough to bid beyond two spades they will stop there and make a part score while a more enterprising North would either have pushed them too high or watched his partner make a part score of his own.

This time if North had bid three diamonds, East would still have bid four spades and South might well have doubled. Otherwise, he would pass and set them one trick undoubled provided North did not go berserk and bid five diamonds after having bid three diamonds earlier.

Ask the Jacobys

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know if we would double an adverse one-spade bid for takeout with:
♠ A K x x x ♣ K Q 10 x x x
The answer is a decided "No." We would simply overcall with two diamonds. You should be very careful about doubling one major suit when you can't stand the other one.

Inside China today

A look at the incredible silk industry

By DEAN S. LESHER
Publisher

Our visits to factories producing silk cloth were among the highlights of our 23-day visit to the People's Republic of China.

The silk production is a major industry in China. In certain areas of southern China, silkworms are grown in abundance. We visited silk factories where there were huge warehouses of silk cocoons. In each cocoon was a live silkworm that our escorts would pull out and show the worm still weaving threads of silk.

I was amazed at the size of the warehouse and number of silkworms involved in silk production in a large factory.

The cocoons are placed upon spindles and very minute strands of silk are pulled out of the cocoons and wound onto spindles. Thousands of cocoons are used every day in a large factory.

After the silk from the cocoons is rolled onto spindles, it is dyed in various shades. These then are wound onto larger spindles for use in producing cloth.

Silk production is the most automated process we saw in China. The automation is performed by the punching of large cards which in turn drive looms producing silk cloth.

These cards are about 4 inches high by 18 inches wide and perhaps half an inch thick after being punched by machines similar to the tape punching machines we use in America for the performance of many functions, including the setting of type. These punched cards are put together by tape in hundreds and hung on the back of a machine to automatically produce various kinds of silk patterns.

It was quite interesting to see these automated machines producing silk cloth 45-48 inches wide with as many as 12 to 14 different colors within the patterns at the rate of about a foot every 4 or 5 minutes.

Some patterns are quite complicated and require many colors. The patterns included floral, geometric and other designs. Favorite patterns include a number of large animals.

The silk at the end of the machine is then transferred onto bolts which are warehoused for shipping.

This automation was rather mind-boggling in view of the many patterns produced in a large silk factory. We were told, for example, that over 100 patterns might be produced in one factory during a year.

We inquired rather doubtfully as to whether there was as much demand for silk now as there was before synthetic products began to invade the field of fine fabrics. We were told that there is a steady demand for all the Chinese can produce.

Many of the machines were producing plain silks in various colors, that rivaled the rainbow and many combinations thereof. These machines were operated automatically but without the use of punched cards designed and required only for multi-colored patterns.

We saw a number of these patterns displayed in a room at the end of the production line. None of these silks were for sale at any of the factories but were turned over to the government for display and sale in various stores, all of which are owned and operated by the government.

In one silk factory in Canton, we saw a long machine producing scarves in various designs and colors. The scarves were three across the web of silk that was coming off the machine. Up to the end of the machine, everything was done by automation.

At the end of the machine two women were sitting, each with a large pair of iron scissors, cutting the rows of silk scarves apart so that the three rows thus cut apart were falling into cardboard boxes on the floor.

We wondered at the time

why they didn't have slitters to perform this function.

For example, newspaper presses 40 or 50 years ago came without slitters. Someone devised a razor-blade slitter for the top of the folder to cut the web of paper coming onto the folder into two parts, in order to produce tabloid (halfsize) papers. It was not long before the industry developed slitters held firmly in place at that point, which could be lifted up when not in use and dropped down to perform this function of cutting the web into two parts.

Slitters would work the same way in China for separating the rows of scarves as they come out of the machine, thus completing the automatic process of producing scarves. Perhaps sometime someone will think of this and utilize such a simple device as a razor blade held in place or a permanent slitting device to separate the three rows of scarves as they are disgorged from the machine.

Thus, in the midst of a remarkable demonstration of automation, you find a throwback to the use of manual labor, as illustrated in the scarf-producing machine.

This was the lesson we learned from China everywhere we went: complex work done automatically and simple work done by hand.

China presents the enigma of doing certain things in a modern way. At the same time, next door they are doing some simple and elemental things by hand when these same items could be produced much faster, better and with a higher standard of quality by automation.

Some of you may inquire as to how these famous silk brocades are made. They are made by hand in China. Workers in quality factories have in front of them a design which they are following. They then place individual threads colored to comply with this design on a weaving loom.

In this manner, very intricate designs requiring the use of as many as 18 or 19 colored threads are produced in certain factories. The weavers who produce these intricate patterns are persons of considerable experience.

These particular factories have apprentice schools which take young, inexperienced people and develop them through years of training and work to become expert weavers.

In one of these, for example, we were astonished at the number of intricate designs being produced.

In one shop in Hangchow, the designs produced by this method of hand weaving included beautiful pictures of scenes of nature and of landscapes, together with enlarged portraits of the faces of leaders.

As an example, we saw one man at a loom using a very small snapshot of the face of Lenin and converting this into a woven portrait about 30 inches wide by 45 inches long. The facial expression in the woven portrait was identical to that of the small snapshot the weaver was following as a pattern.

In similar style, we found other weavers producing life size facial portraits of Chairman Mao, Chairman Hua and Premier Chou En Lai. These are being produced for display in some of the major buildings in the larger cities of China.

Ultimately, it is hoped that some of these will be available for purchase after the needs of the Chinese national government and the various provincial governments for these portraits have been filled.

These hand weavers are quite adept and fast at running the bobbins of the different colored threads of silk back and forth in the weaving. However fast these may seem to be, the actual production is quite slow.

The amount of hand work going into these woven tapestries and silk brocades is unbelievable. The wonder is not that they are priced as high as they are but they are actually priced so low for the number of man hours involved in their production.

China is living up to its reputation for silk, for silk production and for patterns that are beautiful and charming. We saw these in only one or two shops in the larger cities of China, primarily Shanghai. Individual Chinese cannot afford them. They are thus intended primarily for export.

The primary outlet for sale of these silks and brocades to foreigners is at the Canton Exposition and Fair held in Canton twice each year from April 15th to May 15th and from October 15th to November 15th. This is the major sales program of the People's Republic of China to exchange its products for the currency of other nations. That currency is then used to supply China's needs from foreign sources.

What the future holds?

Smaller cars, faster planes and new types of television shows. Those are some of the things consumers expect for the United States 10 years from now, according to a new survey by a market research firm.

The company, R.H. Bruskin Associates, interviewed 2,531 persons — 1,255 men and 1,276 women — in May and asked them what they thought life would be like in 1987 in terms of automobiles, television programs, clothing, air travel and sports.

Bruskin said the people interviewed represented a cross section of American households. Sidney Rowland, senior project director of the firm, said the people surveyed were not provided with suggested answers to check off. They could respond in any way they chose.

Rowland said many of the answers reflected current problems. People tended to reply in terms of today's issues rather than standing back and taking an abstract, visionary look at tomorrow.

Sex and violence, for example, figured frequently in answers to the question about television. "If you had asked the question five years ago, before all the stories about sex and violence, you probably would have gotten different replies," Rowland said.

Chrissie's big on the inside

Just Ask

The tipoff:

Remember the legendary line, "Stagg Fears Purdue?" It came up every autumn when Amos Alonzo was preparing his University of Chicago football teams. Well, "Davis Fears Denver." Meaning Al Davis, impresario of the Oakland Raiders, thinks the Denver Broncos can raise hell with the chances of his team to repeat for the Super Bowl. The Broncos are vulnerable at quarterback with Craig Morton — "but they've got that bleeping defense," says Davis.

Q. Tell me something about the personality of tennis star Chrissie Evert, the kind of stuff you don't see in the news stories. — R.R., Hollywood, Fla.

For one thing, she's not the Miss Glacial Face that's been depicted, and certainly proved that after her loss to Virginia Wade at Wimbledon. Chris is even capable of showing emotion now on the court, though admittedly she has worked hard at mastering a poker face to hide her considerable emotions. Off the court, she is friendly, puckish, with a sense of humor that she reveals to her friends. She is also quite self-sufficient and highly motivated.

Q. Isn't it time Ted Simmons of the Cardinals got recognition as the finest catcher in baseball? All you ever read about is how great Johnny Bench is. Well, compare what they're hitting. — R.F., Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Simmons, no longer shuttling around at first base, the outfield and even third base, has settled fulltime into catching and is having a great season at bat, reminiscent of his .332 in '75. But I'm not about to put him ahead of Bench for all around value as a receiver. Even with his aches and pains, the Reds' catcher is the best mitt man in the game. And though he doesn't hit for Simmons' average, he's far more productive in home runs and runs batted in.

Q. Do you think George Foreman, the former heavyweight champion of the world, will stay retired, as he has announced? — T.Y., Orange, Tex.

George professes to have seen the light and swears he no longer will participate in the brutal sport of hammering other men senseless. But I look at the Ring Encyclopedia and note that he is a spry 29 years old and that Muhammad Ali made $16 million last year, which means there's a lot of money to be earned inside the ropes. And I'm just cynical enough to believe that when George comes up with the shorts, he'll change his mind and go for more of the loot, principles notwithstanding.

Q. Who are some of the sons of former major league stars who are making it on their own in the big leagues? I've heard there are several. — L.R., Napa, Calif.

Four prominent ones come to mind immediately as offspring who are playing regularly, and well, for major league clubs today. They are Buddy Bell, the third baseman of the Cleveland Indians (his dad was longtime outfielder Gus Bell). Bump Wills (Maury's son), the rookie second baseman of the Texas Rangers, Roy Smalley, Jr., the second baseman of the Minnesota Twins, and catcher Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, whose father Ray was a hard-hitting major league infielder.

Q. Where does Manny Trillo, the Cubs' second baseman who has been leading the National League in hitting, come from? How long has he been in the majors? — N.C., Morris, Ill.

Trillo is from Venezuela. This is his third full season in the majors. He played briefly a couple of times with the Oakland A's, who traded him to the Cubs in the deal for Billy Williams in the fall of '74 — Charlie Finley rarely lets that kind of talent get away.

Q. Do you think Jim Plunkett will come back this fall as a topflight quarterback for the 49ers? — T.M., San Rafael, Calif.

That's the $17 million question (what it cost the DeBartolos to buy the club) since the 49ers' hopes for a big season are largely dependent on the injury-plagued quarterback's arm. He was terrible last year, throwing off balance and hurriedly. One of the 49ers' brass likens it to the way Dizzy Dean threw unnaturally after he was winged in the toe by an Earl Averill drive, ruined his arm and was never the same pitcher again. He was also hoping history wouldn't repeat. Personally, I think Plunkett will be O.K.

Parting Shot:

The San Francisco Giants, from what I've seen of them recently, are among the worst defensive teams ever put together — particularly down the middle, where it counts the most.

Child goal beats Hawaii

SAN JOSE — Paul Child, off a cross pass from Leroy DeLeon, banged in a ten-yard shot with 23:01 remaining to give the San Jose Earthquakes a 1-0 win over Team Hawaii and a solid grip on a playoff berth in the North American Soccer League playoffs last night at Spartan Stadium.

The match was witnessed by 19,158 fans, the 'Quakes' seventh sellout of the season, tying a league record. DeLeon's assist gave him ten for the season, setting a new club record. San Jose plays Dallas Saturday at home in the regular season finale, while Hawaii wraps up its campaign Thursday by traveling to Seattle.

San Jose leads Hawaii by four points over Hawaii in the race for the third and final playoff spot.

The first half saw both teams struggle on offense at first, as the obvious importance of the contest made them play a defensive-minded game.

However, the Earthquakes gradually began to open up their attack and started taking it to the Hawaiians.

Earthquake goalie Mike Hewitt and defender Laurie Calloway combined forces for a brilliant defensive effort with nine minutes gone in the contest.

Hawaii's Chris Dangerfield and Brian Tinnion fired three shots at the Earthquake goal, which Hewitt deflected twice and Calloway once. On Dangerfield's first shot, Calloway broke through to stop it and Hewitt quickly picked the ball up.

Davey Kemp of the 'Quakes fired a 20-yard shot straight ahead with 8:50 left with Hawaii goalie Peter Fox stopped, bobbled and fell down before grabbing the ball for the save.

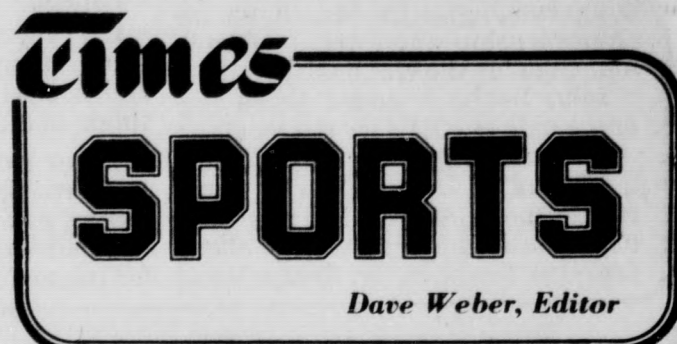

Hewitt made another brilliant save with 7:50 to go in the half on a Hawaii free kick. He leaped to his right and pulled the ball down amongst several Hawaii players.

Ilija Mitic smashed a 35-yard boot which barely cleared the crossbar to the left with five minutes remaining in the half.

San Jose averted a near-goal by Hawaii with 20 second remaining in the first half when Hewitt bobbled a shot from the left side but held on for the save.

Mike had five saves by halftime and Fox picked up three. Mitic had five of the 'Quakes 11 shot attempts on the first half. Hawaii had eight attempts.

May deals magic out to A's, 5-1

OAKLAND — Baltimore lefthander Rudy May recorded his 100th career victory as the Baltimore Orioles downed the Oakland A's 5-1 last night at the Coliseum in front of a half-price crowd of 8831.

May was deprived of his ninth complete game of the season when Earl Weaver, the mixmaster of Baltimore's strategy, brought in Dick Drago to finish off Marty Perez in the final inning.

The A's only run came in the eighth on a throwing error by rookie Oriole shortstop Kiko Garcia.

Joe Coleman took the loss for Oakland, but received little support from his teammates, who put very few of their nine hits into the same inning.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead into the bottom of the seventh, despite another game pitching performance by sore-shouldered A's starter Joe Coleman. Baltimore scored a run in each of the third and fourth innings, although their overall offense did not match up well with that of the A's.

Former Ygnacio Valley High School shortstop Kiko Garcia hit his first home run of the season not twenty miles from his Concord home leading off the third, skying the ball over the left field wall 380 feet from the plate.

Coleman walked Ken Singleton for the second time to start the fourth. Lee May followed with a single, but the slow-moving Singleton stopped at second when Oakland centerfielder Tony Armas hastily recovered the ball.

Coleman got rookie Eddie Murray to bounce out to Perez, but both runners advanced when Perez' swipe tag missed May, killing any chance of a double play.

The O's capitalized at once as Pat Kelly hit another bouncer to Perez, whose only play was to first after a frustrated glance at Singleton.

The A's leadoff batter reached base in five of the first six innings and three times got as far as third. In fact, when Manny Sanguillen singled and Rich McKinney doubled to begin the sixth, the A's had two runners in scoring position with nobody out.

But a popup, a check swing ground-out and another infield roller quickly got Baltimore out of a jam.

NOTES: Ken Rudolph signed with the Orioles late last week after being released by the San Francisco Giants. He appeared in only 11 games with the Giants and batted .200 for 15 at-bats. A spot opened up with Baltimore when Al Bumbry went on the 15-day disabled list ... Thanks to the American League's brilliant schedule, Baltimore and Oakland are off today, but conclude a two-game series Wednesday.

NFL contract approved

MINNEAPOLIS — The $16 million contract between the National Football League and the NFL Players Association in settlement of a bitter court battle — and rule changes that loosened the clubs' grip on players — got final approval Monday from U.S. District Judge Larson.

There was no immediate word whether attorneys for the 17 players or former players objecting to the settlement would file an appeal.

But an appeal challenging the class-action agreement approved on behalf of some 3,000 athletes who would share in the payments by NFL clubs would not seem likely to have much chance.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, who had called the settlement "an Irish sweepstakes" for some players, said Monday he was "extremely pleased" with Larson's decision. "We think it is the right decision, it will benefit all the players," he said.

Larson, veteran jurist who heard more than 50 days of testimony on the original suits and the objectors' testimony for two weeks in April and July, revealed that a small minority was disenchanted with the agreement.

"Only 19 individuals have indicated any objection ... out of approximately 5,700 members of the class," he wrote in his 45-page decision.

"Fewer than one-half of one per cent of the class members have objected to any phase of the settlement."

He noted that of 17 named as objectors in court, 14 were represented by the same agent.

Larson tentatively approved the agreement between the NFL and NFLPA on March 30.

It provided for payments by the clubs of $13,675,000 under one class action called the Alexander case and $2,200,000 under the Mackey case, plus court costs of up to $150,000. Individuals share in payments ranging from $150 to more than $20,000, according to a point formula.

The points were awarded both for seasons played and to those who played out their options and risked the wrath of owners, 1972 to 1976. Points also were earned for being drafted.

Kermit Alexander is a former defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers and onetime NFLPA president.

John Mackey was a tight end for the Baltimore Colts and was one of 15 players who filed suit with backing of the NFLPA in 1972.

Besides some $21 million asked in damages, the players sought to toss out the Rozelle Rule. That gave NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle power to award compensation in disputed free agent movements.

Some athletes criticized the rule as giving dictatorial powers to Rozelle and keeping them in "bondage" by not being able to move from one club to another. Larson found NFL restrictions violated antitrust laws.

The new compact voids any player compensation for a free agent who played under an option year and signs with another club. Instead, the team losing the player is awarded a draft choice according to a scale geared to the departing athlete's salary.

One in the $125,000 to $200,000-a-year salary bracket commands a first or second-round college draft choice.

Giants win, 9-2

McCovey slams 18th

MONTREAL — Willie McCovey's grand slam homer keyed a five-run third inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh to carry the San Francisco Giants to a 9-2 triumph over the slumping Montreal Expos Monday night.

It was the 18th career grand slam for McCovey.

Losers Wayne Twitchell, 2-7, got into trouble in the third by walking Derrel Thomas, giving up an infield hit to Jackie Clark and another base on balls to Gary Thomasson.

McCovey worked the count to 2-2 against Twitchell and, after fouling off a couple of pitches, blasted a shot into the right field bleachers.

Giants pitcher John Montefusco, 4-9, went the route, giving up 10 hits and striking out 10.

Twitchell, who was beaten 3-0 by the Giants last week in San Francisco, was in difficulty in the second inning when he gave up singles to McCovey and Harris.

Former Expo shortstop Foli lined into a double play to relieve some of the pressure before Alexander slammed a 1-0 pitch just inside the right field foul line. Both of Alexander's home runs this season have been against Montreal.

The Expos, who now have lost eight of their last 11 starts and four in a row, got a run back in the bottom of the second when Tony Perez doubled off the wall in right center and scored on Cromartie's double to center.

They added their second run when Pappy Fries poked a single to left to lead off the third and scored when Thomasson mishandled Chris Speier's single to left.

The victory was the Giants' third in four games at Olympic Stadium and their sixth in ten games against Montreal.

T-V Cubs fall to Barneys

The Tri-Valley Cubs frittered away an early lead as the San Francisco Barneys dealt them a 5-2 defeat in California Baseball Association semi-play at the Dublin Sports Grounds Sunday.

The loss snapped a two-game win streak in league play for the Cubs, who fell to 2-8 in CBA play and 16-17 overall.

The Cubs jumped out to an early 2-0 lead in the first inning, as Jim Florence walked, Bob Chapman singled, Mike Cary drew a base-on-balls and Bob Stoddard was hit by a pitch to force in a run.

John McGue bounced into a double play to plate the final run, while Carl Speck popped out to end the inning.

Kirk Petersen's second-inning single was the only other hit for the Cubs, as Jim Melane shut them out the rest of the way to pick up the win.

Scott Ellis and John Prieto toiled on the mound for the Cubs, with Prieto relieving Ellis in the sixth when the Barneys picked up the go-ahead run after scoring two runs in the second to tie it.

The Cubs play their next three Sunday games at the Dublin Grounds, all of them doubleheaders with the first game counting as league game and the second as practice. Games begin at 11:00.

Bankhead joins Cal cage staff

BERKELEY — Bob Bankhead, Southern California High School Basketball Coach of the Year in 1976, will join the coaching staff at University of California at Berkeley, UC said Monday.

Bankhead, 32, coached for the past seven years at Inglewood High near Los Angeles. According to UC Berkeley head coach Dick Edwards, Bankhead will assume duties as assistant coach on Sept. 1.

Edwards called Bankhead "one of the most respected basketball coaches in Southern California. He will be very valuable to our recruiting efforts."

Bankhead's high school teams had a 45-12 record during his two-year tenure as Inglewood's head coach. He is a graduate of Central State University in Ohio.

Perry's blast from past

ALAMEDA — Like lightning striking twice, Wayne Perry ripped a pair of three-run homers to lead the Livermore Merchants to a 10-4 win over Hayward in the American Softball Association Oakland Metro Tournament here Saturday.

In the same tournament a year ago, Perry blasted a game-winning home run to give the Merchants the championship and a trip to Hamilton, Ohio for the Nationals.

John Bonham added three hits and a pair of RBI's for the locals.

Although Hayward jumped out to a 3-0 lead on Dick Gingery's home run in the second inning, the Merchants scored four runs to go ahead for good. Bonham, Art Bernacil and Ed Escover singled to score one run, while Perry laced his first homer of the game to plate the remaining three, the ball rolling through the left-centerfield hole.

Perry hit another three-run shot in the fourth as Livermore went ahead 7-4. Bonham and Bernacil each singled ahead of him.

Larry Page and Rus Haley singled, advanced to second and third and scored on Bonham's two-RBI single in the sixth to sew up the win.

Other local teams didn't fare as well, with Red Carpet Realty dropping a 4-1 decision to Hayward earlier and the Courtyard Lounge falling to Concord's Atlas Tree, 7-4.

Macks break even

The Tri-Valley Connie Mack baseball team closed out its season with a two-game sweep over the weekend, beating the Oregon Shamrocks, 9-0, and San Bruno, 15-7.

Tri-Valley, which begins its Winter League season Aug. 14, finished the year at 13-13 with a pair of ties.

In Saturdays win over

Bates, Sylva qualify

MONTEREY — Dorothy Bates and Jo Sylva of the Pleasanton Women's Golf Club are among the early entries for the Third Annual Silver Circle Senior Women's Golf Championship of Northern California to be conducted Sept. 27th at Old Del Monte Golf Course here.

Bates, a 17-handicapper, fired a low gross of 86 to win the qualifying round at her home club while Sylva became half of the team for the better-ball event with a net 65.

Senior women golfers over age 50 with 32 or lower handicaps compete in qualifying rounds throughout the state.

the Shamrocks, Jeff Perry got the win and Dave Dearborn a save as the two combined for a five-hit shutout.

Perry also doubled at the plate while Dearborn singled to drive in a run. John Bachleda, Bob Tarte and Dan Wilkes all added hits for Tri-Valley.

Oregon's top batters were John Thomas and Scott Ross.

Sunday, Brad Burnham got the win over San Bruno with help from Bachleda, Mark Davis and Dearborn.

A TIP ON THE TAP
LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Chuck Dolezal, the 6-9 center of the McNeese State basketball team is either a clairvoyant or he had done some intensive scouting of the Lamar five. In a game early in 1977, Dolezal told Lamar center, Homer Taylor, "Your team is lined up wrong. You're supposed to be stacked up on the other side."

"You're right," Taylor said. He moved to the other side of the court and a short time later took a pass and went in for a score. Lamar won the game in overtime, 79-75.

ALL IT TOOK TO GET REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' WAS TEN YEARS, A FEW GOOD MEN AND STUBBORNNESS BEYOND BELIEF

In Decade we've accomplished something that many thought impossible: delivering real cigarette taste with only 5 mg. of tobacco 'tar.'

Of course, like all things worthwhile, it wasn't easy. The final ecstatic shout of, "Eureka, we did it!" was a long time coming — ten years, in fact. But when you succeed in doing the impossible, who counts the years?

The Decade "Total System"

How were we able to keep the taste in a low 'tar' when so many others have failed? Mainly by developing our unique "Total System" in which every part of a Decade cigarette is arranged in perfect balance with each other. The tobacco, the filter, and even the paper. Only by concentrating on these parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing," plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

Take the tobacco, for example. Its taste is boosted by a very unique method called "Flavor Packing" which allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

The Filter. Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

Our filtration process is also unique. Simply, we've created a "Taste Channel" within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

Even our high porosity paper is specifically designed to give an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.

A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And who knows, after you smoke your first Decade, you may shout "Eureka" too.

Regular and Menthol.
